

Transparency statement for “Reproducibility Report for: The Forecasting Collaborative.

Insights into the accuracy of social scientists’ forecasts of societal change”

Ana Martinovici, Ekaterina Pronizius, Erin M. Buchanan (order in report)

Last compiled on 2026-02-10 at 09:03:58

Version transparency

The reproducibility check was completed in December 2024, based on the version of the authors’ repository available at that time (i.e., commit 32cfd57 on branch `main` of <https://github.com/grossmania/Forecasting-Tournament>).

To ensure transparency and long-term verifiability, we created an unsynchronized fork at <https://github.com/anamartinovici/Forecasting-Tournament>. The evaluated repository state (i.e., commit 32cfd57) is available at: <https://github.com/anamartinovici/Forecasting-Tournament/tree/32cfd57c635d08a54a2eff8f735382c3c16336ac>

Materials availability

Materials related to the reproducibility check (including code, preregistration, and report files) are available at https://github.com/Meta-Science-Replication-Team/repro-Forecasting_Tournament. An archival snapshot of version v1.0.0 is preserved on Zenodo (<https://zenodo.org/records/16698261>, DOI 10.5281/zenodo.16698260).

OSF Link and Update

The complete report, along with author response, can be found at: <https://osf.io/mepbv/overview>. Per request on 2026-02-09, the robustness check was updated from first publication on (v1.0.0 initially published on 2024-12-11 20:28:12.443407). The reproducibility and preregistration sections did not change.